ALONG THE RIVER.

The Macalester and the Randall Have

Brush-Other Notes of Interest. The principal topic along the river front today is the brush which took place last night between the steamers Harry Randall and Charles lester. It was an exciting contest for speed supremacy and the excitement is the more fitense because the result was not decisive. The Randall people are crowing with The boat was lying at Alexandria and had both lungs, but the Macalester folks are shout- coaled on one side, the Queen came along, the ing "He who laugh last laughs best." There has been a high pressure of politeness, courtesy and bad blood between the boats in question.

The Randall left River View at 10:30 and the search light of the ster was throwing streaks of day from around the bend. Capt. Ross of the Mac yelled, "She's ours," whispered something to the engineer and the Marshall Hall river ripper began to eat coal by the ton. Capt. Nowell of the Randall exclaimed, "She's after us," said some river front idioms in an undertone and jerked the jingle bell almost out of joint. Chief Engineer Tom Tennyson took off his coat and shirt and unbuckled his suspenders. Commo-dore Randall watched the lights of the Mac, requested the engineer to "let her go" and placidly put the wrong end of the cigar in his mouth. Drinks were sent down to the firemen and rash extravagance in coal was practiced. Both steamers were crowded with excursionists, and their prayers for victory mingled with the commands of the officers, the cries of the crews and the quake of the engines. People aboard the Macalester said, "We're gaining on her," and people on the Randall cried, "She's fading in the distance." The launch Lovie was passed and she saluted with three sts, but the racers would not use steam to bly. The Randall had about 300 passengers reply. The Handall had about 300 passengers for Alexandria and the Mac had a clear run Landing and cast off were effected in short order, but the Macalester was directly astern and coming with both feet. Thence on the race was one of the hottest in the history of the river. Ladies and land lubbers clustered around the engine rooms and advised the officers in charge, with sundry suggestions. But the Randall had the lead and kept it to the finish. She rushed up the Washington chan-

the Handall had the lead and kept it to the finish. She rushed up the Washington channel under a full head of steam and the engine was not given its one beil till abreast of Sheriff dock, No. 2. So close was the Macalester astern that she had to lay to while the Handall hauled for her dock. Allagoned congratulations were indulged in Miss Randall took the roses from her corsage bouquet and presented them to Capt. Nowell and Engineer Tennyson. Ross declared that it was not one of the fast nights of the Macalester; that her wheels persisted in turning the wrong way, and that he did not care about passing the Randall through fear of running down some of the small fisher craft that show no lights. In fact, he had pulled a slow-down bell when he saw the Randall.

A DECK HAND DROWNED.

Thomas Brown, deck hand, was drowned yesterday from the River Queen. The body has not been recovered. Landing was made at Fort Washington, and the steamer had come to a full stop. Brown was engaged in some usual work when he reeled and fell from the gangway. Efforts were at once put forth to rescue the man, but without avail. He sank immedi-ately. It is supposed that he suffered an at-tack of vertigo. Brown had been in the em-ploy of the Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall Steamboat Company only about one week. It altitude to which the nervy little lady attained. It was a clear day and only the balloon and parachute could be seen when she dropped. She fell in the river close to the Virginia shere and was lifted from the water and landed by Mate John W. Dyer.

This is the same lady who fell from a balloon last summer at River View and wrecked several of her bones. She pulled through all right and soon after, while skating in the rink at Atlanta, Ga., fell and broke her left arm. She claims to have a patent attachment for her parachute which renders it impossible for it to fail to open.

place and Mr. Hamilton of the firm of Morris & Hamilton of Washington for the company. A mandamus case between the same parties was also argued today.

Several gentlemen of Potomac district who were here today complained of the publication of exazgerated reports in regard to excitement in their locality on account of the alleged prevalence of hydrophobia. They say that some weeks ago several animals that were supposed to have the disease were promptly killed, and since that time nothing has been thought of the matter. Mr. L. M. Offutt, jr., who had one of these stspected animals on his place, became somewhat alarmed, and by the advice of his physician went to the Pasteur Institute in New York for treatment, and at the latest accounts was rapidly improving. The citizens of that section of the county complain that these reports are detrimental to their interests, and have already had a tendency to keep away visitors from the public resorts in that section. It is also said that persons have declined to send their horses to that locality for pasture on account of these exaggerated reports.

Most of the buildings were frame and offered small resistance before the rush of flames sent against them by the gale, that was blowing thirty miles an hour. It was feared the fire would pass the barrier of the river and destroy the town of Moorhead. Two thousand people have been made homeless.

Moorhead people threw open their hotel and houses for the homeless. The loss cannot be estimated. It is believed that 200 buildings, large and small, have been burned. The fire started in a sales stable and spread with awful rapidity.

The fire crossed the river to the Moorhead side at the Ferge roller mill which was burned.

Son the 15th instant. A large number of pupils from a distance are in attendance.

The closing exercises of the school at Great Falls, Miss Willie Beall, principal, were of a very interesting character and were largely attended. The several premiums distributed by Mr. J. W. Carroll were awarded to the following pupils: Viola Higgins, Ernest Fisher, Nora Riley, Emma Dove, Robt. Garrett and Ella Fisher.

Next Sunday will be observed as Children's day at the Darnestown Presbyterian Church. A sermon will be devoted to recitations, singing, &c., by the children and an address by the pastor.

The Radical Change in the Manner of Dressing Young Girls.

Perhaps comments on the fashion of garbing girls of twelve or fourteen years of age are unnecessary. Brown checked ginghams, flat round hats and white muslin dresses with a pink sash for "very best" are as unpopular nowadays as is that good old-fashioned proverb "Children should be seen and not heard." That is the sole reflection I am willing to permit myself before plunging into the intricate details of an outfit for half-grown girls who spend their summers at the seashore to recuperate from the nervous strain of school work.

The Massachusetts, the second of the three coast line battle ships to be launched, was authorized by act of Congress approved June 30, 1890, appropriating for the construction of three battle ships, at an individual cost not exceeding $4,000,000.

Bids were opened October 1, 1890, and to William Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia were awarded two of these crafts, at a contract price of $3,020,000 apiece. The award was made November 19, 1890, at which time the Cramps formally bound themselves to finish the two vessels within exactly three years.

The Massachusetts is built of steel. The hull is protected by belts of heavy armor 7½ feet wide, three feet of which is above water.

This protection runs along both sides of the feet wide, three feet of which is above water.
